State Congressional delegation urges continued spending ban on Piñon Canyon

By MIKE GARRETT
The Chronicle-News

Colorado U.S. Senators Michael Bennet and Mark Udall and Representatives John Salazar and Betsy Markey urged appropriators in the House and Senate this week to support and maintain the Congressional spending moratorium on the Pinon Canyon Maneuver Site (PCMS) expansion in southern Colorado.

In a letter to Appropriations Chairman Daniel K. Inouye; Tim Johnson, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Military Construction, Veterans' Affairs; and Chet Edwards, chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Military Construction, Veterans Affairs; the Colorado lawmakers cited continuing questions surrounding the Army's need for expansion and the need to protect Southern Colorado's farming and ranching economy as reasons to extend the moratorium as part of the fiscal year 2010 Military Construction and Veterans Affairs Conference Report.

"In the three years since the Army first proposed expansion of the PCMS, there has been continual concern about whether or not there is a need for more land beyond the 244,000 acres it already has," wrote the lawmakers. "Therefore, this moratorium, which the subcommittee has supported before, must continue to remain in place."

Specifically, the letter states that for the past two fiscal years, Congress has banned the Army from spending any funds for PCMS expansion. "We write to urge you to support and maintain this funding moratorium for a third year in the final FY 2010 Military Construction and Veterans' Affairs conference report. Maintaining this moratorium is important to us and to residents of southern Colorado."

moratorium, which the subcommittee has supported before, must continue to remain in place."

The letter goes on to say that Southern Colorado farmers and ranchers are entitled to Congressional assurance that their way of life will not be unnecessarily or unjustly put at risk. "Congress can provide that assurance by including the following language, which is in the House-passed bill, in the final FY 2010 Military Construction and Veterans' Affairs appropriations bill: "None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available in this title may be used for any action that is related to or promotes the expansion of the boundaries or size of the Pinon Canyon Maneuver Site, Colorado."

Pinon Canyon Expansion Opposition Coalition members continue to attack the Army's conclusions of the proposed expansion's economic benefits should another 100,000 acres be added to the current site.

Dorothy Best lights up Raton

By TIM KELLER
The Chronicle-News

RATON - Dorothy Best stands beaming beneath her four Telly Awards, won for video documentary projects she's made since creating her Head in the Clouds Productions business in Raton in 2003. The journey from East Texas schoolgirl to award-winning Raton filmmaker has not been a straight line.

Born in Biloxi, Miss., Dorothy bounced back and forth between schools in Mexia, Texas, and Tucumcari, N.M., following her father's work as a radar technician for the Federal Aviation Administration. At 16, after two years of dating Tucumcari farm boy Alan Best, the two married. Dorothy continued her high school studies in Las Cruces, where Alan attended NMSU, then in Española, where she graduated from McCurdy High School in 1973.

The next years were focused on raising a family - daughter Alana was born in 1974, son Dwaine in 1976, and son Nathan in 1981. By the time Nathan was born, the family lived in Raton, where father Alan now owned the local Radio Shack franchise.

As the kids grew increasingly independent, Dorothy took a variety of jobs. She was office manager for the Raton Chamber of Commerce. She was contracts manager for Bill Fegan Productions, back when Fegan was actively booking national tours. She worked twice for the Raton Range, where she began as a typesetter. When computers transformed newspaper produc-

Power Authority expects to increase utility rates

By MIKE GARRETT
The Chronicle-News

When it rains, it pours. But it's the continuing rising cost of the accompanying electrical storms that is creating more dark clouds for city of Trinidad utilities customers.

Arkansas River Power Authority General Manager William Leung told the Trinidad City Council during its Tuesday work session that $1.7 million in unexpected legal costs resulting from two lawsuits against ARPA, and leaks last winter in ARPA's new Lamar power plant's steam-
