Trinidad Community Foundation awards Mitchell Museum

New Pueblo online school targets high school dropouts

By MIKE GARRETT
The Chronicle-News

At-risk students and young adults who never obtained their high school diploma or those who want to earn a career certificate can now take advantage of a new Pueblo-based 18-month, 18-credit, private E-cademy career online high school program that launched statewide last May.

E-cademy senior educational consultant George Mayfield, who is also a Pueblo Kiwanis Club member, discussed program details and advantages at Tuesday's weekly Kiwanis Club of Trinidad luncheon at A Little Catering Co.

The for-profit E-cademy is ideally suited for people seeking a diploma in such career fields as office management, child care, certified protection officer, certified transportation services (preparing students to earn a commercial driver's license), Homeland Security and later this year a home health care aide, said Mayfield, who worked 23 years in the energy industry for Shell Oil Co., and General Electric. For another 14 years, he was a business process and audit consultant for his own business, Pathfinders and later worked for Robert Bell & Co. Mayfield began his career in education teaching in his native

Raton Youth Theater brings adventure to Shuler

By TIM KELLER
The Chronicle-News

RATON - Raton Youth Theater (RYT) returns to the Shuler Theater this weekend with the swashbuckling pirate comedy "Captain Bree, Scourge of the Sea," featuring 28 local kids from grades 3 through 11. Thanks to RYT, many of the production's young actors are already accomplished veterans of the stage.

Taking place on the high seas, most of Captain Jennings' crew abandons ship, leaving him with only a handful of prisoners and Fergus, a sailor who can't swim, to protect his wealthy passengers from a pirate attack. Spenser Willden has his hands full as Jennings, assisted by Joaquin Ramirez as Fergus.

Their pretentious passengers include the Prescotts, led by Zoe Gomez's Madam Prescott and including her nephew Samuel, who masquerades as a girl to avoid becoming shark bait; Zachariah Salazar dons a dress and wig for the role. Kristina Jansen plays Madam Prescott's young niece, Julia Prescott, who becomes attracted to the pirate life, to her aunt's dismay.

Nathaly Torres is pirate Captain Bree, leading her crew of Clair Willden, Holli Wood, and other lady pirates in capturing Captain Jennings' ship, passengers and all. Hijinks

AMBROSE MALLET
 Ambrose Mallett, age 64, was called to Eternal Rest on Friday Feb. 25, 2011. Ambrose was a graduate of Manning Training School, after which he attended South Carolina State College and Morris College. He joined the US Army, served in Vietnam and remained in the service for 12 years. After being honorably discharged in 1978, he moved to Colorado. He attended Denver Metro State College and was employed by the City & County of Denver, Denver Health Medical Center and Board Walk as a Certified Addiction Specialist for fourteen years until his retirement in 2002. He and Rama then moved to Trinidad, Colo., where he began wood carving. Using a variety of woods, he used the natural beauty and form of each piece of wood, adding his own special touch, to make it a true work of art. He won numerous awards for his art.

Memorial services will be held at the First Methodist Church of Trinidad, Trinidad, Colo., on Saturday, March 5, 2011 at 1 p.m. with Pastor Leslie Barnett officiating. Private inurnment will be held at a later date.

What are some strategies to cope with grief after the loss of a loved one?

Take care of yourself through self-expression

Death is part of life; hanging on will not prolong your loved one's life or bring them back. Letting go and surrendering to the grieving experience, with the help of others, will bring comfort and solace. Here are some other areas in which you can 'grieve well':
 Self-expression
 Physical self-care
 Emotional self-care

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of RACHEL HERRERA who Passed away eleven Years ago on March 2

We cannot forget her, We love her too dearly, For her memory to fade from our lives like a dream; Our lips need not speak, When our hearts mourn sincerely. For our grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.

Sadly Missed By, Husband, Sons and Daughters, and Daughters-in-Law, Grandsons and Granddaughters, and Great-Granddaughters

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of ALFRED FREYTA On His Birthday March 2 "Happy 85th Birthday"

A father and a friend Sent to us from above. He listened to our sorrows And soothed them With his love. He was a teacher Whose place no one could take, For he's the source from which We learned to think And navigate. He was a gift from God From which we learned to be Patient, strong and loving, Filled with integrity. A day does not go by When you are not In our thoughts. Your sacrifices and your love Have left us with Tender memories. We love and miss you. Who always saw his family Have the things he did without? And gave so much, unselfishly, For that's what love's about. Who thought and planned and Struggled, too, As nobly as he could. To set a good example, and Be a respected man? Who sought no honors, No rewards For all that he had done? Except to raise a family, The very finest one. Though we cannot evaluate Our father, his love, his worth, To us he'll always be "Just Papa" The greatest guy on earth, And now in heaven

Sadly Missed by His wife, Cathy Freyta, His kids, Ashley, Nathan, Joe and Veronica, Grandkids, Santiño, Serenity, Aavery, Aston, Antonio, Daniel

In Loving Memory of ALBEO VIGIL On His Birthday March 2

Do not ask us if we miss him, For there is such a vacant place, Often we think we hear his footsteps, Or see his smiling face. Sad and mournful was his parting. Lonely are our hearts today. For the one we loved so dearly, Is celebrating his birthday in Heaven today.

We miss You Grandpa, Rocky, Melissa, Brett, Jacob, and Jace

In Loving Memory of ALBEO VIGIL On His Birthday March 2

Memories are treasures no one can steal Death is a heartbreak no one can heal. Deep in our hearts his memory is kept.

Sadly Missed by, Donald, Angela, and Marie DeCrow And Skylar Inslee ensue until, finally, the British Navy intervenes, led by Stone Phillips as Admiral Moore.

Gail Dixon-Willden takes her child-wrangling skills to new heights, teaching sword fighting and stage combat skills to her 28 young actors. "This is the first time here that I've taught the kids the basics of stage combat," she says. "It's been fun and the kids have been ultra-responsible. They've learned that Rule 1 is safety and Rule 2 is control. Choreographing is critical with any combat, and these kids have been religious about following the rules and still having fun."

Dixon-Willden is assisted by Ashley Atwater, Stephanie Jansen, and Jeff Redlick as stage managers. (Yes, it takes that many managers to coordinate a stageful of 28 children.) Mariah Fleming coordinates stage management from the light booth, where she's joined by Toby Henson running lights and Tate Wood running sound.

Dixon-Willden designed and built the set, assisted by Cory Gomez. Janice Little has tackled special products. Cian Hazen is the production's technical director; Bill Fegan the producer.

Ursula Garcia and Misty Gomez were in the midst of completing the costumes during last week's partial dress rehearsals, held for 90 minutes after school every day.

Additional pirates with speaking parts are Jacque Alcorn, Asia Gentry, Kate Little, Laura Robertson, and Breanna Brown. Joining the fun are pirate extras Rachel Kristina Jansen (in dress) and Clair Willden are overwhelmed as Joaquin Ramirez and other midnight escapees run havoc on the ship's deck.

Lynn Hull, July Hunnicutt, Lijah Medina, Natausha Ortega, and Priyanka Sinha. Additional captives, all with speaking parts, include Curtis Espinoza, Rahul Sinha, Jacob Hattaway, Ryan Hull, Johnny Gentry, and Alex Tedford. Several of the actors playing captives reappear in second roles as officers of the British Navy. The comedy by Martin A. Follose combines action, adventure, and suspense with a touch of romance. Raton Youth Theater presents three performances of "Captain Bree, Scourge of the Sea" this weekend. Friday and Saturday show times are 7 p.m. A Sunday matinee is scheduled at 2 p.m. Admission at the door is $8 for adults, $6 for seniors, and $4 for children. Additional information is available from the Shuler Theater office at 445-4746.

Stigma and mental illness

By HELGA MEYER
 Spanish Peaks Mental Health Center
 Special to The Chronicle-News

When individuals with an apparent mental illness are involved in violent crimes—such as the shooting incident in Arizona last month - our first reaction is that of shock, but there are two quite different ways we can respond to that shock: (1) wanting to understand the "why" of the violent behavior by looking for common symptoms and causes of such behaviors; or (2) casting an immediate label of "crazy" or "lunatic" on the individual who became violent. Regardless of how you may respond, it's safe to say that most of us avoid things that we fear or don't understand. So, when you don't understand, tolerate, or get to know an individual who may have a mental illness, it's easier to use negative labels to quickly categorize them as someone to fear or avoid. This is also known as stigmatizing mental illness - or attaching a badge of shame or disgrace to it.

While violent or criminal behavior can never be condoned, it must be repeatedly emphasized that there are many people with a mental illness who are not violent, angry, or exhibit criminal behaviors. Anger and antisocial behaviors can accompany a mental illness, but they can also appear in people who don't have a mental illness. Problems occur

COLORADO STATE PATROL REPORT

DUI: A bigger (and scarier) deal than you think

By TROOPER JOSH LEWIS
 Special to The Chronicle-News

In Colorado, there are two main categories of drunk driving: Driving Under the Influence (DUI) and Driving While Ability Impaired (DWAI). These can be by alcohol, drugs, or both. Essentially, it comes down to the amount of impairment demonstrated and alcohol or drugs within the driver's system.

On any average Friday or Saturday night (meaning, not a holiday or "special occasion" weekend, etc.) one out of 14 drivers on the road is under the influence of alcohol. Recently, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) found the nationwide average in 2009 was approximately one out of 12. And those are only the people that have admitted to drinking and driving in the previous year.

What may be just as concerning is the amount of recidivism happening with regard to drunk driving. For more than a decade, 70 percent of drivers involved in an alcohol-related fatality crash had a blood alcohol content of .150 or higher; meaning, double the "legal" limit or more. Three percent of those drivers had a previous DUI conviction in the prior three years.

In 2009, NHTSA reports approximately 33,808 people died in traffic crashes across the United States. Of that number, approximately 10,839 were a result of alcohol, either their own drinking or a drunk driver causing the crash. Translated, that shows 32 percent of people killed in car crashes are a result of alcohol. Breaking it down, that means one person will die in a drunk driving crash every 50 minutes. On average, three of those people are under the age of 21. Driving with a blood-alcohol content of .150 or higher will increase the chances (versus a sober driver) of a fatal crash by 380 times. To get that amount of alcohol into one's system, he or she would need to drink a six-pack of beer or six shots of liquor. With St. Patrick's Day approaching, the Colorado State Patrol sincerely hopes that drivers will not become a statistic this year. It is very easy to call a cab or a friend, take a bus, give up your keys, or designate a driver before going out to have some fun. Ultimately, our goal is twofold in the State Patrol: get the amount of drunk drivers caught on the roadways down to zero, while getting the amount of alcohol related crashes down to zero. We hope you will help us reach that goal. (All numbers and statistics courtesy of NHTSA and can be found on the website: NHTSA.gov)
