Rodríguez signs agreement that keeps him on the job for five years

By Ken Stickney
Special to The Chronicle-News

Trinidad School District #1's Board of Education and Dr. Manuel Rodríguez, the board's choice for its next superintendent, have signed an agreement that would keep Rodríguez on the job for five years.

Board member Vic Meyers said Monday that Rodríguez signed the contract over the weekend and Linda Vigil, board president, signed the contract on the board's behalf Monday morning.

"It's official, signed and done," Meyers said.

The contract, which was approved by the board March 23, pays the next superintendent, a Texas native now serving as an assistant superintendent in Maryland, $105,000 annually with a $12,000 annuity.

Meyers said only minor details had remained to be worked out since March 23, including moving expenses.

Rodríguez was the board's first choice to lead the system among three finalists who were interviewed in March. He was selected in a March 18 special meeting and both board members and Rodríguez said they were in substantial agreement on the particulars of Rodríguez's contract.

"Given his history and the successes he has had in other places, I expect he will hit the ground running..."

Board member
Vic Meyers

Rodríguez will assume control of the school system office July 1. His wife Agatha, also hired March 18, will start her new duties July 1 as an Eckhart Elementary School teacher on that same day.

"Given his history and the successes he has had in other places, I expect he will hit the ground running," Meyers said.

The wind blows circus into town

Winds up to 60 mph forced the Barnes & Carson Circus to perform without its Big Top tent in Raton on Sunday. The winds resulted in some empty bleachers, but the show must go on and it did, delighting the hardy hundreds who braved the winds. See full story and more photos on page 2.

Trial set to begin Tuesday

C-N Staff Report

Jury selection continues Tuesday in the jury trial of a Trinidad man accused in a stabbing death.

Trinity Jay Romero has been charged with first-degree murder in the Aug. 15, 2010, stabbing death of Kyle Williams Phillips. The trial is scheduled to begin late Tuesday.

According to police reports, ROMERO allegedly stabbed Phillips, 24, of Trinidad, after both men were playing pool and after an argument between the two at the Empty Pocket Saloon on North Linden Street in Trinidad. After arguing outside the bar for about five minutes, Romero allegedly stabbed Phillips and then fled the scene.

Romero, 32, of Trinidad, was formally charged in October with first degree murder after he went into hiding and was arrested on Sept. 4 by the Las Animas County Sheriff's Office at his parents' home on East Main Street in Trinidad.

Las Animas County District Attorney Frank Ruybalid is not seeking the death penalty. Romero is charged with first-degree murder, a Class 1 felony, which carries a sentence of life without parole.

Romero has been held at the Las Animas County on a $250,000 bond since his arrest.

Wildfire hits about 15 homes

Associated Press

FORT COLLINS — Crews fighting a Colorado wildfire from land and air Monday were trying to get control of a blaze that had destroyed about 15 homes.

Helicopters on Monday dropped water on the fire around 15 miles west of Fort Collins. Two planes were also being used to help to identify hot spots.

The weather was forecast to grow windier and warmer, with gusts of up to around 40 mph.

Snow and cold weather on Sunday helped calm the 7-square-mile fire in a rugged, hilly area. However, fire managers say there were still hot spots that winds could spread.

The fire was about 5 percent contained at midday. Crews were building containment lines and checking to make sure the fire did not spread beyond.

Residents of more than 300 homes were evacuated but were allowed back.

Local businesses warned about letter

By David J. Santistevan Jr. The Chronicle-News

Local authorities Monday were reviewing a letter sent by a Nevada-based company to Trinidad area businesses that asks for what appears to be an excessive amount of money for helping with business filings with the Colorado Secretary State's Corporate Division's office.

Over the past five days Las Animas County businesses have received letters from Corporate Controllers Unit LLC that have what appear to bear legitimate-looking seals and letterheads. The letters quote state laws for filing annual business reports and offer assistance for $225.

Some local businesses say the letter looks to be legal and creates some sense of urgency for them to pay out the high fees by April 15.

The Boulder County District Attorney's office has also reviewed the letters, and said, "Consumers should deal directly with the Colorado Secretary State's Corporate Division's office" when it comes to filing paperwork with that office.

Those reports can be done on line for only $10 at the Colorado Secretary of State's web site.

Businesses should be aware that they do not have to pay the middle business the $225 asked for in the letter by this Nevada-based company, the Secretary of State's Office has said.

Trinidad Police Chief Charles Gloriso said Monday his office was just made aware of the letter.

"We are looking into this; the bottom of the periodic report does state that this is not a bill, invoice or statement of an account due, and that the business are under no obligation to make any payments on account of this offer," Gloriso said.

Las Animas County District Attorney Frank Ruybalid added, "Everyone needs to be careful and check into any suspicious e-mails, mailings and phone calls before sending any personal information or money."

If consumers have any questions about the letter they should call the Trinidad Police Department at 719-846-TIPS.

Big winds blow but show goes on

Polished performances dazzle N.M. audiences

By Tim Keller The Chronicle-News

RATON, N.M. – The Barnes & Carson Circus didn't really bring the wind to town – the two arrived from opposite directions – but the circus and the wind arrived in Raton at the same time and left together too.

Westerly winds of 30 mph repeatedly gusted as high as 60 mph all day Sunday, wreaking havoc at the Raton rodeo grounds as the 75-year-old circus company decided the show must go on, but it couldn't go on inside the huge Big Top tent under such conditions.

An hour before the first of two shows was scheduled to begin, co-owner Barbara Byrd wasn't confident there would be a show. Though rides and booths and food and animals were all arrayed along a midway, the public hadn't yet braved the wind to start arriving.

Minutes later, though, vehicles started entering the parking area out on York Canyon Road, outside Raton, and by 3 p.m. the first of two shows went on with several hundred adults and children in seating designed to hold up to 2,000 under a tent. For 90 minutes, smiles and laughter became so universal that the audience was able to forget the wind.

The seasoned circus performers were consummate show people there to entertain. They'd just emerged from their annual four-month winter hiatus in Hugo, Okla., and begun eight months of travel in which they put on two shows in a different town every day. The closest they come to taking a day off is occasionally performing in the same town for two days.

After ending their evening show in Guymon, Okla., Saturday, they took two and one-half hours to strike the show, then their caravan of more than two-dozen large trucks and trailers drove to Raton, arriving by midnight. In an open field, the troupe of 125 created an entire carnival and circus in just one Sunday morning.

By 3 p.m., the performers had changed into flashy show costumes. The fast-moving one-ring circus featured a variety of performers who have honed their skills by giving 480 shows each year. Professional entertainment at remarkably reasonable prices gave area families an unforgettable day at the circus, despite the wind's competing efforts for people's attention.

Although the big-voiced circus announcer apologized for the lack of the Big Top, the show was too professional to make any other apologies: no mention was made of the fact that the trapeze, high wire, and juggling acts had to be canceled due to the winds. Other acts were substituted, but the whole show was good enough that no one noticed anything missing.

The Barnes & Carson

Circus first performed in Raton in 1987. Its appearance this year was sponsored by the Raton Kiwanis Club, The Medicine Shoppe, KRTN Radio, International Bank, and Trinidad's Hometown Pharmacy. A second show at 6 p.m. drew hundreds more to the rodeo grounds before the circus troupe pulled everything down and moved on to Las Vegas, NM, for its Monday shows. Those who came out for Sunday's unique open-sky show outside Raton will hope the circus troupe returns next year, but without the wind.
