TSD Board approves new online school

By Steve Block
The Chronicle-News

George Dasko called it a school within a school. The Trinidad School Board voted unanimously at Tuesday's meeting to establish a new online school as a part of its academic opportunities for local students.

Dasko showed board members 17 requests by local students to send their records to GOAL Academy. Should all 17 of those students leave the district and go to GOAL, Dasko said it represented a loss of $115,600 at the current rate of $6,800 per pupil in state funding. There were seven similar requests to send transcripts to other school districts in the area.

New Superintendent Scott Mader said Dasko and Business Manager Bill Cordova had brought up the issue of trying to retain as many students as possible within the district, and trying to get back those students who had previously left for online or other schools. The longtime girl's basketball coach at Trinidad High School used a sports allegory to highlight his remarks.

"You know, they say in coaching that the worst thing you can do is wait until the opposing team takes the field and then prepare for them," Dasko said. "That's where we're at. We're at a point where GOAL Academy is our competition. We have 17 kids who would be freshmen at our high school who have applied at GOAL Academy and they'll probably be accepted. I look at it and I say, 'can we lose 17 kids out of every class that comes in?' I don't think we can. They're our competition. We're going to play fair and be aboveboard with everything, but I think we need to compete and start an online school in our district. I don't think we can wait until next year. I don't think we can wait at all. I think we need to do it and do it right now, because what's going to happen is we're going to lose some kids. They may not cut it at GOAL, but after the October student count, do you know where they're going? They're coming back to our district. So it's really up to us to keep these kids here, deal with them and provide the best possible venue to a good education for them."

The program Dasko proposed would be tailored to fit the needs of each individual student, so they can develop the skills they'll need to move forward academically. It would include a typical online program where a student spends six hours a day working on various classes at home, while being monitored by a teacher. The student would have to check in on a regular basis. Another option would be for students to be in classrooms for their elective classes, but take their core classes online in a computer lab where they could work at their own pace. The program would include credit recovery, so students who have fallen behind

Lip Sync 2014 was so competitive that channeling Elvis wasn't enough for an honorable mention for Chris Padilla, but he won the grand prize with his wife Cathy Padilla for another performance.

Lip Sync 2014 packs Shuler Theater for family frolics

By Tim Keller
Correspondent
The Chronicle-News

Lip Sync 2014 filled the Shuler Theater Friday and Saturday nights as whole families took turns hamming it up and goofing around for the entertainment of their friends and neighbors. The oldest performers to take the stage were in their 80s; the youngest was six-months old. There was an equal mix of adults and children, often together in a single performance.

Cathy and Chris Padilla of Raton won the 37th-annual event's $200 first prize for their comic performance acting and lip-syncing "Love Runs Out" by the group One Republic. Portraying an elderly woman and man at "Ol' Fogie Restin' Home," they took a long time slowly walking onto the stage in silence, aided by a walker and a cane, respectively. When they sat down, the music started. The old man grew frisky and the old woman dealt with it: by the time they were done, they'd been dancing and the old man was exhausted. The audience loved it. So did the judges.

The Padillas said after the show that they've entered the contest for many years. Their previous best result was last year's 3rd place when Chris sang as Michael Bubl . He failed to place this year with his impersonation of Elvis, but his "Jailhouse Rock" won him 4th place in 2012.

Because set changes are required between each of the 25 acts, half of each night's show consists of repartee and silliness from hosts Robi Gonzales and Sean Green, who have been honing their act annually for a quarter-century. They include performances dressed in

SPOTLIGHT ON BUSINESS

Vintage Treasures thrives in new location

By Steve Block
The Chronicle-News

Getting shoppers through the door to see what's available is the key first step toward success for any retail business. Bree Pappan said recently that moving her Vintage Treasures Antiques and Collectibles business three blocks south to 108 N. Commercial St. recently has caused more shoppers to stroll through the door.

Pappan's had a brick and mortar store in Trinidad for the past two years, selling stylish vintage clothing and accessories focused on the styles and patterns that were all the rage in the first half of the 20th Century. Prior to that, she had a long career as a picker for high-end boutiques in the Tuc-son and Scottsdale areas of Arizona, and in Southern California. She sold antiques out of her home there and also did some consignment work. She learned the ins and outs of the antiquing trade with the help of a friend she refers to as "my mentor".

"I've been doing this now for two years and I understand that there's a period of time for any new business to establish itself," Pappan said. "I feel like the first two years were a learning experience. I feel like we've established ourselves in what we wanted to do and I'm pleased with the way it's been going so far."

She said high-fashion ladies hats from the 1940s and 1950s had

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

ANGRY WIFE RESENTS HUSBAND FOR HIDING NEWS OF HIS HEALTH

DEAR ABBY: When my husband is sick or needs to have surgery, he refuses to tell his family and doesn't want me to. This puts me in a very awkward position. I'm damned if I do tell them because he will be upset with me, and damned if I don't because his family won't trust me, and I don't want things that way.

Invariably, when he gets home, he calls his family and tells them all about his surgery, and I'm left looking like I withheld the information, when it's not me at all. I have asked him what if he DIES? His family will be upset not only by the tragedy, but also at me for having kept them in the dark.

I'm considering leaving him over this. I don't deserve this from him. And no, he won't see a counselor and I won't do it alone, so do you have any other advice than that? – IN A DIFFICULT POSITION

DEAR IN A DIFFICULT POSITION: You should not be made to feel that you're stuck in the middle. It would be nice if your husband understood that when he is sick enough to be hospitalized that YOU might need the emotional support his family could offer. But since it's not going to happen, he should make plain to his family that HE prefers to be the bearer of this kind of news, and the reason they aren't hearing it from you is because he wants it that way.

DEAR ABBY: I love my sister and enjoy chatting with her, but our schedules make it difficult to connect. When we do speak, her husband often interjects or starts another conversation with her, as if she isn't on the phone. She also settles spats between her toddlers and other things her husband could manage while we're talking.

When this happens I say, "I can tell you're tied up. Can we talk later when things settle down?" Her reply: "We can talk now. Things are ALWAYS crazy around here."

As it stands, we speak only a few times a year, and I'd like her undivided attention. I have tried bringing this up a number of times, but she feels life doesn't stand still for anyone.

Is it too much to ask for 30 minutes, three times a year? We live several states apart, so having a face-to-face isn't an option. Any help would be appreciated, because I'm hurt. – MISSING MY SISTER IN GEORGIA

DEAR MISSING YOUR SISTER: I don't blame you for feeling hurt, because apparently your sister isn't interested in having the kind of contact you would like. It may be that her husband is ultra-controlling -- hence the constant interruptions from him -- or that her household is so disorganized she's in the middle of a whirlwind.

If you haven't already, write her a letter and express your feelings. It's one way of getting your thoughts across without being interrupted. I don't think 30 minutes three times a year is a lot to ask of her. Propose setting a specific time to talk when her kids and husband aren't around. Then cross your fingers and hope she sees the light.

Lip Sync 2014 packs Shuler Theater

drag that are, well, over the top.

The show's program lists more than 100 sponsoring businesses from Raton, Trinidad and other communities, supporting an event that raises thousands of dollars each year to provide medication and blood-sugar monitors to diabetic patients throughout the area.

The program also lists each song and the artist that made the recording, but not the names of the local performers who are often disguised in elaborate costumes to lip sync the night's songs. It doesn't really matter who's in each disguise, though it's still fun guessing; what works is just knowing that it's your neighbor or co-worker or mechanic or bank teller. It's entertainment of the people, by the people, and for the people, and easily the most grass-roots event the Shuler Theater presents each year.

It's also so rollicking and fun that small children in the audience never cause a disturbance; in fact, chances are good that they're playing dress-up and getting ready to play on stage. It's a comedy show and a variety show that's absolutely unique to Raton and, since the 1970s, a highlight of every Raton summer.

The $200 first place prize at Lip Sync 2014 went to Chris and Cathy Padilla for their performance of "Love Runs Out" by the group One Republic. Well-produced and acted from start to finish, the comic performance brought rollicking laughter to a packed audience at the popular 37th-annual event. Because the annual Lip Sync shows require time-consuming set changes between acts, half the show consists of hosts Robi Gonzales and Sean Green, who have been doing it for more than 20 years and include many of their own costume changes.
